

Dear Cargill Salt Customer:

In reviewing REACH regulations, Cargill Salt has determined that it is not required to register any of the salt products shipped to the European Union.

Cargill Salt food products are exempted as are all food products specifically exempted by the legislation.

Non-food products that do not contain other additives are exempted under Article 3.39, as "Substances which occur in nature," and under Article 3.40, "Not chemically modified substance."

Non-food products containing additives are considered a "preparation" by REACH. In a preparation, we would consider the component substances separately in terms of the one metric tonne per year threshold. No additives will exceed the threshold individually.

If you have additional questions, please contact Cargill Salt QA Tech Services at qa_salt@cargill.com.

Sincerely,

Cargill Salt
